Beta Theta Pi.

Beta Theta Pi Fraternity was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1839. John Riley Knox first suggested the idea, and having taken eight other gentlemen into his confidence, the first meeting was held on July 4th, 1839. The University of North Carolina Chapter was established in 1852 as Eta Prime and lived until 1861. Its initiates numbered forty-eight men. The Chapter was re-established in 1889 by a union of Beta Theta Pi and the Mystic Seven Fraternities. The Mystic Seven Fraternity was founded at Wesleyan in 1837 by Hamilton Brewer, and its membership numbered about four hundred. After protracted negotiations a union was effected with Beta Theta Pi. The "Star of the South" Chapter of the Mystic Seven thus became the Eta Beta of Beta Theta Pi.

History.

Chapter N. C. XI of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity was established at the University of North Carolina in 1857, one year after the foundation of the Order, which took place at the University of Alabama, March 9, 1856.

The Chapter continued its existence until 1861, when it, in common with all other Chapters of Fraternities here, was discontinued when the students left college to rally around the Southern battle flag. The University closed its doors in 1868, but was re-opened in 1875. For some years the laws of the Faculty forbade Fraternities here, but in 1885 these were repealed, and Chapter Xi was re-established on February 21st of that year. The Chapter at present numbers fifteen men, and is, as it has always been since its re-establishment, the largest Chapter in the University.

There have been admitted to the Order through N. C. Xi up to date seventy-three men, whose names and present addresses are as follows:

ESTABLISHED AT UNIVERSITY OF CITY OF NEW YORK, 1846.

Upsilon Chapter of Zeta Psi was founded at the University of North Carolina during the spring term of 1857-'58 by J. G. McNabb, Wm. Adams, R. F. Kolb, R. C. Swain, W. J. Jones, T. C. Evans and W. H. Pinnix. At the time there were some eight or ten secret societies, among which stood prominent the B. O. H., A. K. E., J. P. and N. P. With these the Upsilon was soon a rival and grew in prosperity from 1858 to 1861, when the news of the secession came. Into that vortex wherein was plunged the largest portion of our wealth and much of the best youth of our country Zeta Psi rushed, returning with the loss of nine or ten of its members.

Of the twenty-seven Chapters at the University before the civil war only Z. P. and the N. P. were alive at the close. The Upsilon was one of the few Southern Chapters of the Fraternity that survived the civil war. It increased steadily in rank and numbers and initiated members up to the class of 1868, but died during the dark days of reconstruction, to be reorganized after a sleep of seventeen years on March 12th, 1885. Its course since its re-opening has been very prosperous, and at present numbers the following members:

Sigma Nu.

January 1st, 1891, ushered in the twenty-second birthday of the Sigma Nu Fraternity; and its founders, who, on the same day of the year 1869 met at the Virginia Military Institute to organize a society with only local intentions, may be well pleased to-day with the growth of their work and expansion of their ideas.

Shortly after its inauguration its members determined on expansion. Two Chapters were established. These died. In 1879 the parent Chapter alone survived. But in 1883 a remarkable degree of interest again sprang up. Three Chapters were founded. This trio suggested the name of the official organ of the Fraternity, which was called Sigma Nu Delta and began to be published at the same time. This interest keeps up, and to-day thirty active Chapters and four large alumni associations are its fruits.

In the fall of 1888, a dispensation having been secured, Psi Chapter of Sigma Nu was founded at the University of North Carolina by Walter Murphy, of Salisbury, N. C. Since that time it has enjoyed a liberal membership.

History of the Class of '91.

READ ON CLASS DAY, APRIL 15TH, 1891, BY W. H. WILLS, CLASS HISTORIAN.

Those who have left their Alma Mater and have become involved in the serious cares of the world tell us that the transition from student life to business life is so gradual as to be scarcely perceptible; that when the young graduate first finds himself thrown upon his own resources, he is still in feelings merely a college boy: and perhaps not until some circumstance forces him, does he awake to the fact that he is, in very truth, a "man of the world," and when he looks back he cannot see the steps by which the transformation has been made. So it is with the college student. When we entered, only the "cheekiest" regarded themselves as otherwise than far down in the scale, and the gulf between us and seniorhood seemed wide indeed. But here we are very near the end, and so gradual has been the change which has come over us we can scarcely realize it. There is indeed a wide gulf between us now and when at the beginning of our college course, but as Time has advanced, each one of us has kept pace with him, and we now find ourselves, as we always have and always will, fully abreast the hoary-headed monster.

But it has not been an uneventful four years. The historian who would undertake to chronicle faithfully the career of the Class of '91, and to explain the philosophy of the events connected with it, would require not only great talent, but inspiration. The present writer having neither, and not being allowed time requisite for a very full treatise, must content himself with a recital of only a few of the more important transactions, and will be obliged to omit the philosophy of them altogether.

As a class we have suffered many changes. After all Time has remorselessly committed his depredations. We entered college with over sixty men: many have fallen by the wayside, and we now stand, after passing through the storms and battles of nearly four years, a band of twenty-three, greatly reduced in numbers it is true, but all gallant and brave. One more stand, one more fight, and our triumph is complete. So with stout hearts and renewed courage we will nerve ourselves to this last conflict, and,

“Come foes like the forest, an’ fast life bluid flows,
(We’ll) aye stan’ thegither, Montrose wi’ Montrose.”

The four years spent by this class have not been an uneventful period in the history of the University. By the establishment of the Agricultural College in the State, and the withdrawal of the Land Scrip Fund from the University consequent upon this, Professors Atkinson, Phillips and Henry were compelled to leave at the end of our first year. This was the beginning of many and rapid changes in the Faculty.

During the Spring of the second year Professor Graves was granted a brief leave of absence on account of ill health. Before the summer was ended the hand of Time had beckoned him away, and he had entered his endless rest. Beneath the spreading branches of a young oak tree in the village grave-yard lies the slumbering genius, and his leave of absence has never been re-called. In the same spring Professor Peed came and went. He will be remembard as the gentleman who was over-anxious to get married, but couldn’t, and as having over a dozen photographs of himself, all taken in different positions. Professor Love left us at the end of this year and became a resident Fellow in Harvard University. He is now a popular and successful teacher of mathematics in that seat of learning, and is steadily winning honor and promotion. At the beginning of the third year, as Professor Graves's successor, came Major Cain, a fiddler, a hunter and a bachelor. At the beginning of the present year he brought back with him as his assistant, Professor Claflin, who in turn, after half a year's loneliness, brought back with himself a wife.

In the latter part of the third year the good and lamented Dr. Mangum was removed from our midst. He had for nearly one year after disease had laid a heavy hand upon him bravely kept up his work in his department, and yielded only after a hard and unequally matched fight. Day after day this venerable man, waiting for his classes as usual, his snow-white beard falling upon his bosom, his face beaming with purity and stern with resolution, served to guide us in our search for truth and to teach us, by his example, of fortitude and devotion.

Dr. Mangum was succeeded by Professor Williams. Some executive officers win the reputation of being "veto presidents" or "veto governors." Our new Professor of Philosophy has earned the distinction of mercilessly "throwing" men, especially Seniors. It would be a matter of surprise if half the Senior Class at each examination did not "fall" on the Philosophical Basis of Theism. It is unnecessary to state that our battles have been much harder since the arrival of this Professor, in spite of the previous exertions of Professor Toy, and often to come out ahead or retrieve what we have lost has been, to use a philosophical and Kant term, a "thing in itself," very hard to do.

The Medical School was re-opened at the beginning of the fourth year, and Dr. Whitehead came to take charge. He is also College Physician, and has proved a great boon to the students. To him and to our ever-faithful friend, Mr. McRae, we cordially make our bow.

Our diplomas will be the last to receive the signature of Dr. Battle as President of the University. For the last fifteen years Dr. Battle's name has been so closely identified with the institution that it is difficult to think of them apart. It is a source of gratification that there is to be no severance of connection. Taking hold of the institution at a time when it was struggling to rise from the wreck which civil war left it, and when its resources were meagre, our President has achieved great success in putting it on the high grade which it now occupies, its course of study greatly enlarged, its opportunities greatly multiplied and its resources, though still small, greatly increased as the direct result of his efforts. There is not one of us who will not always entertain for this kind and genial man the warmest affection, and as men who leave the University at the same time that his administration closes, though we will not be here to witness the installment of his successor, we say: "Welcome the coming, speed the parting guest."

When we entered college, the Sophomores, under compulsion by our friends, the Faculty, dared not openly lift a hand against us. The temptations offered by some members of the class (no longer to be denominated "Freshmen," but "Gentlemen who had just arrived on the Hill") were more than our enemies could stand. The "cheekiest" of the class were blacked, one man eleven times, and as a parting salute was painted with red ink to make out the twelfth. It was a striking combination of colors, for the ink and the Freshman's hair were of the same hue. Needless to say, all these visitations were made at the imminent peril of the visitors.

In the fall of the first year of our course that thing of the past, college politics, was in full blast. We had no sooner arrived than we were beset to join such and such a political party; were dragged from our beds in the middle of the night to attend caucuses; were treated with many blandishments by enterprising candidates; in short, we were the lions of the day. It was the most exciting contest for many years. Politics smashed the good feeling of the students, threatened to smash the usefulness of the Societies, and was itself finally smashed by the Faculty, and the career of the youthful politician was closed. Only the ball managers are now elected by the students, and those elections beget no great interest. Since this change there have been, we regret to say, no big political treats given by successful candidates. We have had one, however, after all. That one was given last year by the worthy gentleman who is now our Class Marshal, who, as defeated candidate for ball manager, gave a "swell" dinner to his one hundred adherents. It was the biggest thing for years.

At the close of our second year the University celebrated her Centennial, and the quiet village of Chapel Hill was filled with illustrious visitors, many of whom were here for the first time since graduation.

The Junior year is generally a commonplace one. The glory and newborn greatness of the Sophomore has been put away, and the dignity of the Senior has not been reached. Consequently many of the Juniors are restless, and ready to undertake anything to break the monotony of their life. This may account for the celebrated duel fought in the third year back of the Episcopal rectory, in which John Person, college valet du chambre, first won his celebrity. The President was asked to interfere and prevent the shedding of blood, but he "smelled a mouse," and kept away. The Rector was then applied to, who readily "bit," and rushed to the scene with a flask of brandy, to find no one on the field. At the end of this year Ditto and Cov were forced to separate, and Ditto, who still abides with us, always seems to have in his eyes a far-away, longing look. This class has had some rare characters in it, many of whom are now well-nigh forgotten. Babe and Bat and Freddie and Hen and Little Edge and all that crowd; we were very lonesome when they left. All these worthies got religion when the Y. M. C. A. revival swept over College in our second year, as did everybody else except Punch and Pos and Mott and Benny Green, and, like all the others, they lost it as soon as the knucks season opened.

Our friends, the members of the Faculty, have not, we must say, shown a very enterprising spirit in exerting themselves to give us a good time in the way of amusements, during our sojourn in this place. As is generally the case, however, with people who do not often exert themselves, when they were roused up they went at it in dead earnest. The following notice was tacked on the bulletin-board one day last Spring:

MINSTREL SHOW BY THE FACULTY.

As the programme shows, when the Faculty do go at anything they do it in royal good style.

As Seniors, absorbed as we are in a college career fast drawing to its close, and anxiously, if not apprehensively, looking forward to life in the world, now well-nigh upon us, it is not to be deemed strange if we know but little of the sporting life around us. The fierce war between the Sophs and the Freshmen (for these latter are now again called by their original name), and all such transactions we pass over as things of no interest to us. Our attention has been engrossed by graver affairs. Inter-collegiate athletics, we rejoice to say, has been revived, and in this work many of our class have figured very conspicuously. Indeed, the record of the class in athletics has been unusually brilliant. We have never been beaten at foot-ball in our contests with the other classes. When we, as Sophomores, challenged the Sophomore class of Wake Forest College to a game of foot-ball, we may be considered as having set the athletic ball rolling in this State. The activity of some of our members, coupled with that of students of some other classes and departments, heartily aided by some of our Professors, has wrought a great change among us. There has never before been such interest in the matter, and the results are highly satisfactory. The best and most active athletes in the class are, as a rule, the best students. So there seems to be an awakened interest in everything connected with the University. The courses of study have never been better or more comprehensive. The Literary Societies are prosperous. The department of History is to be opened shortly. A high grade is characteristic of everything. We say, and confidently believe, that each succeeding year of our stay in the University has seen a marked improvement in the efficiency of the institution and the excellence of the work done.

And now, fellow-class-mates, I say to you what has been said so many times on like occasions. The time will soon be here when we must part. We will not find all as plain sailing as we have found it here. We will not be able to indulge our idle fancies while strolling through "Battle Park." A contest, much harder than the one we have passed through, awaits us. The time will come when we will cast many "longing, lingering looks behind." And then the memory of the happy days spent here, of the quiet village of Chapel Hill, of "Battle Park" and "Piney Prospect" and "Otey's Retreat" and Purefoy's Mill" and "Glen Burney" will come over us like a pleasant dream. And let us remember now that in that battle of life all rests upon ourselves and the equipment we have received, and the manner in which that equipment shall be perfected. The success to be made of life, the enjoyment to be had out of it, the welfare it has, its good, and all that is in it—all depends upon ourselves. And so again I say to you, fellow-class-mates, with reference to that life, let us nerve ourselves to the contest, and with brave hearts

History.

Our class, while fully sustaining its brilliant record of the first two years, has done little within the past year which will be of interest to the general reader. We had been told that the Junior year would be the easiest of the whole course, but we have not found this to be true. On the whole we have worked hard, and for the result of this work we point to the future, not the present. However, we have made high marks in our studies and have won some success in the college world. As a class we can compare well with any that ever entered the University, both in the character of our members and in our work.

Our former President and other valuable members failed to return this year, and we have missed them no little in the class-room and on the Campus. We will always remember them with kindly feelings. Already over half our original number have left us, and wherever they are they may feel sure they have the best wishes of those of us who have continued the quest for the sheep-skin.

Mebane continues to lead in the race for the Valedictory, although Hunter, Cheek, Harvey, Winborne and others are close upon him. Cheek is Chief Marshal for '91, with Mebane, Rollins, Edwards, Winborne, Johnston, Harvey as sub-marshals. Pearsall is a ball manager and editor of the Magazine. Our boys have won other college honors, and you who have left us will never have cause to be ashamed of your class.

As a class we are not inclined to politics, but look to the sciences and literature for fame. Few expect to study law, more will study medicine, several will be civil engineers, and all will get married, we think.

In athletics we have taken a prominent stand. Busbee is captain of the base-ball team, Ferguson is one of the best foot-ball players of the State, and many others are actively interested in tennis and other college sports. Gatling is the logician and statistician of the class, without even a second. It is said that he sits by himself, argues against himself, proves that it is a lie, and ends in a free fight—all by himself. Mebane is probably the most successful with the fair sex, although Harvey will not heartily admit it. Buie and Cheek are the philosophers of the class; they are fast becoming bald. Hamlen is the most graceful man, although Connor denies. Hunter is the sporting character, and Rollins, without doubt, the handsomest man in college. Probably Johnston and Pearsall are the most pious, although Winborne is nearly as much so as Pearsall. Foust is pre-eminently the politician of '92. Davis, Allen and Willcox all claim to be the dude since Robbins has ceased to be hereabouts.

The above estimate the Historian has labored hard to make with perfect impartiality. Of course every one knows that Rollins would have to give way to Urquhart were this prince of beauties to return.

Our Junior year will soon take its place among those that have gone but are ever fresh in memory. Few have done all that they expected, but who ever does that? In many respects it has been a happy year—happy because most of us have tried to do our duty. We will soon forget the failures, and, corrected by our mistakes, we confidently hope that when we leave these happy haunts we may add honor and glory to our Alma Mater. Our Senior year alone remains for us; may it be pleasant and profitable to us all is the sincere wish of

History of Class of '93.

Another year has winged its rapid flight and again it falls to the lot of the Historians to pen the record of '93 from that glorious autumnal morn when we first assembled on the Campus as "Sophomores," determined to stand by our own and come off victors in whatever we entered.

But there lay before us a new duty—to keep a fatherly eye over the Freshmen, and in the fulfillment of this duty ten of us were hauled over the coals by the Faculty and were thinking of packing our trunks and seeking a more congenial place, but after a few days all became quiet again.

The first fact worthy of note was the election of officers by one faction, and owing to a misunderstanding in regard to the former election it resulted in two sets of officers for our class. It having been decided to adopt a class hat, the mortar-board was chosen by “Tammany” and the crush plug by the “Conservatives.” So ’93 has the honor of introducing the mortar-board into the University of North Carolina.

The well-known Fresh water-melon treat which, ’92 had neglected, was revived by ’93, and it was a terrible occasion for the Fresh, for although they paid for the melons they were given only the rinds, and these on the back of their heads, much to the amusement and delight of the other students. From this the Fresh learned how insignificant they were and which was THE class of U. N. C.

Again we tried our skill at foot-ball with the Seniors, and although we played a good game and did ourselves credit, yet we were defeated by a close score, owing to the superior training of our opponents. Then came the December examinations to the sorrow of many, and at their close most of us went home to spend the Xmas holidays, and that we enjoyed ourselves goes without saying. We returned with pleasant remembrances of the happy time just spent, only to knuckle down again to hard work. The election of Ball Managers for the Commencement of 1891 took place the second Saturday after our return, and ’93 carried off more than her share of the honors, the Chief, Hoke, and four of the six subs being members of our class. Next came the exercises of Washington’s Birthday to divert our minds from our labors, and on this occasion we were represented by one of the Marshals. In the afternoon came the annual election of medalists from the Fresh class, and it is useless to say that all the medals were awarded strictly on merit. Great interest was manifested in football, with the expectation of playing Wake Forest and Trinity, but neither would accept our challenge. On the eleven we were well represented by Ashe, Gaither and Hoke. The Class of '93 has always taken great interest in athletics, and has been foremost in all athletic movements. Indications on all sides point to a favorable representation from our class on the base-ball team, and our tennis players who rank among the best are too numerous to mention.

To enumerate the vast amount of knowledge that we have accumulated during the past months would take more space than is allotted to us in these pages. Suffice it to say that '93 has come up to the greatest expectations of her supporters. We will mention only the fact that of the eight inter-society debaters four were from '93. The members of '93 are noted for their untiring devotion to their class and their desire of "office holding." Our class will compare favorably in intellect and numbers with any that has preceded it for many years.

Upon examining the roll we find forty-four of the original sixty-nine of our Fresh year, but we were joined by five men at the beginning of this session, thus swelling our number to forty-nine.

And now, fellow-class-mates, as we think the chief events of the past have been touched upon, we will draw this short and imperfect sketch to a close, referring you to the words of Pope, that "It is to history he trusts for praise," and hoping that you will ever honor your class, we are, with best wishes,

History.

It is not necessary to give account of the first few weeks of the term after our arrival. The incidents of that period are well known, and to be remembered. As a matter of fact, daily, or rather nightly, bulletins appeared on the faces of the "cheeky Fresh." To the careful observer the visages of "Durham Buck," "Ellen of Wilkes" and "ye luckless scribe" often changed their ruddy color to darker hues—this, according to the laws of nature, and especially of man, resulting from an over and ever green supply of wit and jowl. Through many trials and tribulations we passed at length to the Battle of Water-melons, and had our faces bathed in the cool, sandy water of the Rhine (8) (rinds).

After two months of steady work examinations rose darkly in the view of coming holidays, but as soon as sundry and several victims had fallen the ordeal was satisfied and passed away leaving, behind a bright record of duties faithfully accomplished. The new year recalled the "half years" ready for action, and inasmuch as they had been mentally refreshed at home, they were cordially re-Freshed physically on their return. In token of our sincere gratitude a liberal (?) banquet was given to our entertainers. To say that the occasion was enjoyed by our friends of "'93" is needless, and it is even rumored that hay and cobwebs from certain village barns were seen the following morning on the coats, collars and backs of innocent-looking Freshmen. We have never deemed ourselves particularly dangerous, yet once at midnight with white lips it was tremblingly declared that we, in an organized body, were bringing terrible retribution upon the beloved Sophomores. Perhaps the success of the class has depended much on the harmony and hearty co-operation of its members. None of our undertakings have been failures, and we are at peace with all men. It seems that we have been exceedingly fortunate as to the time of our matriculation, for to us, the youngest class in the University, the youngest in the administration, is and shall be the honor of first taking a stand against that dreaded apparition to all Freshmen, the ghostly "Mollie." The men of "'93" have at last joined with us, and now there are "righteous men in Israel," although we feared there were none. "No, not one." By no means perfect, as a whole, we have committed some errors which omitted would have rendered our first year far more pleasant, and in view of these, in consideration of our experience and in accordance with principles which we know to be true, "'94" desires to start in upon her second year anew and hold out a warm hand and hearty welcome to the coming Freshman of "'95."

History of Medical Class of '91.

Standing between the living and the dead, scarcely living, mostly dead, around the stretcher or out the window, as feeling may dictate, is grouped the Medical Class of '91.

Masters of the occult sciences, the magic of the philosopher's stone and the great secret of the Arabians ; well practiced in witchcraft, divination, demonology and all other 'ologies whereunto the science of medicine pertains ; possessing the clue through the intellectual labyrinth of necromancy and prone to produce great signs and wonders and all results that a league with the devil can effect, stand we like sheeted ghosts upon the plains of Death.

The history generally imputed us we disown, though we will make no bones about it, but we have neither the intellectual nor moral courage to divest ourselves of the supernatural lustre with which the ignorance of the vulgar has encircled us. But why should we? Are we not thirteen? And is not the light that conducts us "the sunbeam that has lost its way" ?

The universal remedy is ours and so the power to raise the dead, for are we not the bridge between the living and the dead?

But we can prove what we claim beyond a shadow of a doubt and without any insult to sober reason or any injury inflicted upon sound morality. Mark ye.

Possessed of the art of the magician and directed by the hand accustomed to the grasp of his rod, have we been able to make the following merited selections :

For President, McGougan, who is an acknowledged impostor ; for Vice-President, Morris, who is nearest the ghost of any man of the class ; for Secretary, Duguid, who is nearest nothing as we could select ; and for Historian, Philips, who must know the nature of spiritualism or be himself a ghoul as to presume interest enough manifested by the public as that they will shed a tear of sympathy over the fate of the Medical Class of '91.

SKETCH OF THE HISTORY
OF THE
University of North Carolina.

ESTABLISHMENT.

The University of North Carolina was established in obedience to a clause of section 41 of the Constitution of the State adopted on the 18th of December, 1776, viz.: "All useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted."

The charter was granted by the General Assembly on the 11th of December, 1789. The corporators named therein as Trustees were forty of the most distinguished men in the State, the first named being Governor Samuel Johnston, who had been Chairman of the Provincial Council in 1775, and was one of the first Senators of the United States.

A supplemental act passed at the same session endowed the institution with all the property that should escheat to the State. From this source after many years a considerable amount was realized. Unclaimed land warrants granted to soldiers of the Revolution were located in the State of Tennessee, and of these the General Assembly of that State allowed the University of North Carolina title to one-third. The proceeds of this share constituted the chief part of the endowment, about $150,000; which was lost in the civil war of 1861-'65.

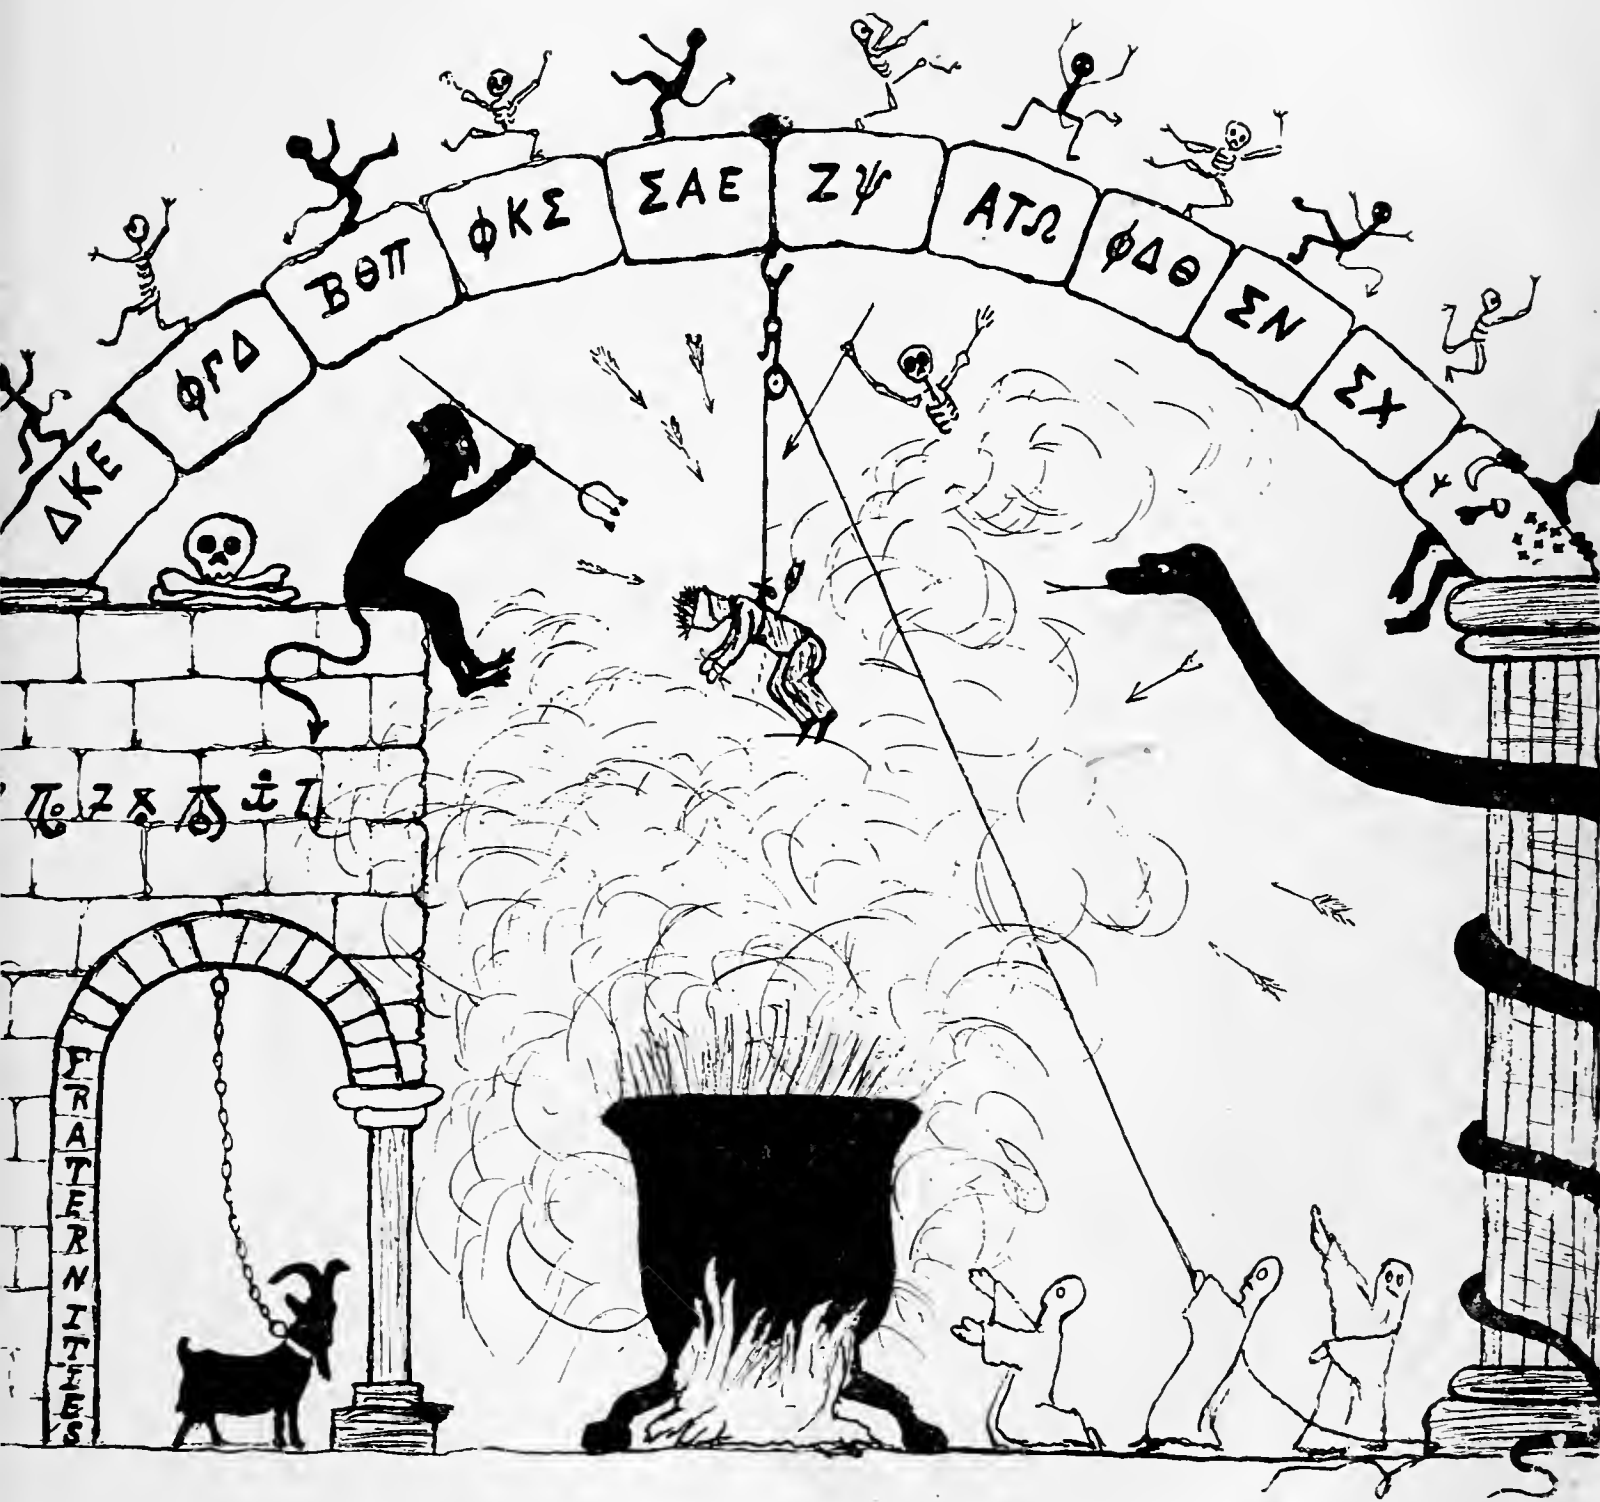

At the first meeting of the Board of Trustees, General Benjamin Smith, subsequently Governor of the State, donated warrants for twenty thousand acres of land located in Obion county, Tennessee. The gift was not, however, of immediate value, as the land was claimed by the Chickasaw Indians, which claim was afterwards extinguished. The lands were sold about 1835 for $14,000.

The village of Chapel Hill was laid off, the first lots sold, and the corner-stone of the old East Building was laid on the 12th day of October, 1793. William Richardson Davie, afterwards Governor and Commissioner to France, as Grand Master of the Free and Accepted Order of Masons, was foremost in the ceremony. Other Trustees present were Alfred Moore, afterwards Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States; William H. Hill, member of the National House of Representatives from the New Hanover District; John Haywood, for forty years Treasurer of the State; Alexander Mebane, member of Congress from the Hillsboro District; Thomas Blount, member of Congress from the Tarboro District; John Williams, one of the three Judges first appointed under the Constitution of 1776; Frederick Hargett, State Senator, who was one of the Commissioners for selecting the site for and laying out the city of Raleigh, and Dr. Samuel F. McCorkle, one of the most noted teachers of the State.

THE PRESIDING OFFICERS AND FACULTY.

At the opening of the University in 1795 there was no President appointed. Rev. David Ker, a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, Professor of Ancient Languages, as presiding Professor, had general charge. Charles W. Harris, a citizen of the State and a graduate of Princeton, was appointed Professor of Mathematics. After holding the office for one year he resigned in favor of Rev. Joseph Caldwell, D. D., LL. D., also a graduate of Princeton, a native of New Jersey. Caldwell was chosen President in 1804 and held that office until his death in 1835, with the exception of an interval of four years from 1812 to 1816, during which occurred the administration of Rev. Dr. Robert H. Chapman, of Virginia. David L.

For the second time THE HELLENIAN is presented to the public, despite the rather cold reception with which the first issue met. We trust that it deserves some small word of commendation and that at least we may be credited with an honest endeavor to make the publication a success.

Swain, Governor of the State from 1832 to 1835, was then President until 1868. On the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, under the Reconstruction Acts of Congress, all the members of the Faculty were displaced by a new corps, of whom, Rev. Solomon Pool, D. D., was President, serving until 1874, there being, however, no exercises after 1870. In 1875 the Trustees being elected by the General Assembly in pursuance of a constitutional amendment, re-opened the doors with a Faculty of which Rev. Charles Phillips, D. D., LL. D., was chairman. In 1876, Kemp P. Battle, LL. D., was elected President and has held the position continuously since. At the meeting of the Board of Trustees held on the 11th of February, President Battle resigned his office, to take effect on the 15th of August, 1891, and was unanimously elected Professor of the Chair of History recently endowed by the alumni and friends of the institution. A new President is to be elected on Wednesday of Commencement week.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES AND GOVERNMENT.

The University is by the State Constitution intrusted to the General Assembly. They have committed it to eighty Trustees, who are usually chosen from different sections of the State, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is a Trustee ex officio. The eighty Trustees hold office for eight years, one-fourth being chosen every two years. The Governor is ex officio President of the Board. Ten members constitute a quorum. At the annual meeting an Executive Committee of nine Trustees is appointed, who hold office for one year and have all the power not expressly forbidden by the Board.

The offices of Secretary and Treasurer are combined and this officer resides in Raleigh and is a member of the Executive Committee.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two Literary Societies in the University, the Dialectic and Philanthropic. Both were established in 1795, the former having a few months' priority in time. The motto of the former is "Love of Virtue and Science," and its colors are blue—the emblem of truth. The motto of the latter is "Virtue, Liberty and Science," and its color is white—the emblem of purity. The members, until a few years ago, selected one or the other from social or other personal motives. Lately there has grown up the custom, not founded on any law, that those from the western counties shall join the Dialectic and those from the eastern counties the Philanthropic Society. The dividing line is not fixed, but well enough understood to prevent disputes. Some of the central counties are considered debatable territory, but etiquette forbids active effort to influence the decisions of those coming from this territory.

The influence of the University of North Carolina on the South has been very great. Besides a President of the United States (Polk), a Vice-President (King), sundry Cabinet officers, foreign ministers, and numerous Federal Senators and Representatives, it has provided every State south of the Potomac with either Governors, Judges of the Supreme Court or prominent legislators, and leaders in every profession and pursuit. It had many generals and other officers, as well as privates, in the Confederate service in the recent civil conflict, and lost over 270 by the casualties of war. In 1858 its numbers reached 461. It is now better equipped than ever for affording the best character of university instruction. It has a good library formed by the union of the libraries of the two Societies and the University, five well-equipped laboratories and nine good buildings, one of which, Memorial Hall, is a grand specimen of architecture and will hold an audience of 4,000.

A Legend of the Tribe of Seniorites.

And it came to pass in the sixth month of the third year that certain of the rulers in Israel* did meet together at Commencement, and one among them arose and said: "Behold the sins of the Seniorites wax great; yea, verily, it is a stiff-necked generation, who forget the god of their fathers and walk after strange gods, the gods of the Ammorites and the Femalites, neither do they study the law which the Lord gave unto Moses. For they say, 'Surely we will graduate in '91, for there is none that dare throw us.' Now, go to, let us send a prophet unto them who shall warn them of their sins, and if they turn not from walking after strange gods let him utterly destroy them out of the land, for this is an haughty generation." And this seemed good unto them; and they cast lots, and the lot fell upon him whose name is the PARSON. And after they had communed with one another they did go forth and take a drink. But the wicked generation wist not that consuming wrath was soon to smite them. Howbeit, the fame thereof went forth, but they hearkened not, neither did they turn from following strange gods; for they did arise and go unto the land of the Femalites,† and they did worship their gods, and they brought back idols with them and did set them up in their houses and did bow down to them and worship them.

Now it came to pass on the first month of the fourth year that the tribe of Seniorites did go up into the temple for to worship, and a new chief priest did perform the sacrifice at the altar; for he was the prophet which was sent by the rulers in Israel unto the Seniorites. His face was not fair to look upon, neither was it beautiful. He wore sackcloth, for he mourned greatly for the sins of the Seniorites, albeit he had blood in his eye. And he girded up his loins and prophesied, saying, "Repent you and turn from your sins, for behold in times past you did grievously transgress, neither did you study the book of the law, but you did follow strange gods, the gods of the Femalites, and you did worship images which are the work of the photographer, neither is there any help in them, for they will desert you in the day of trouble. Therefore offer no more burnt sacrifices unto them, neither put your trust in them, for they are vain." And behold the tribe of Seniorites did mock him, saying: "Prophecy unto us smooth things, for we will not study the law of Moses. Verily, I say unto you it is as easy as falling off a log. But we will worship idols; truly we will worship the gods of the Femalites, and we will sing praises unto them, and we will take them out driving with chariots and horses, and we will send a grievous livery bill unto our governors, and when they receive the bill they will cuss—and when the day of trouble draweth nigh, even the night before it is upon us, we will cram up the book of the law, and verily I say unto you we will get through in great shape; neither will we be cut off in that day when diplomas are awarded." But they wist not what they say, for when the prophet gave them the book behold it was a strange book, and none among them had ever seen it before; the name thereof was the Philosophical Basis of Theism. It was a prophecy of a prophet in the land of Yale—he that is chief priest in the synagogue there. But the tribe of Seniorites hearkened not unto the prophet. And it came to pass on the third week from that time that certain of the tribes of Seniorites and Juniorites and Sophomorites, which were of the class of Pokerites, were assembled in an upper room to initiate certain of the Freshmanites into the mysteries of the Pokerites—this was a grievous sin, for it was a worship of the god Mammon and was forbidden by the chief priests and scribes—and when they had entered into the jack-pot, even while the cards were being shuffled, one of the tribe of Seniorites said unto another, “Behold I have read in the new book of the law where it saith that Herbert Spencer and the Agnostickites are —— liars and fools; now it seemeth unto me that the book is as hard as —,” but he said no more, neither did he meditate thereon again, for one of them opened the pot and he communed with himself whether he should stick upon a pair of deuces. And while he yet mused in his heart he prayed a prayer unto a *Femal-*itish idol, and when he did draw, behold his store of deuces was not increased, but he did bluff boldly and did win the pot; that the saying might be fulfilled: ten thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one. But his heart was hardened and he neglected to give thanks for his blessing, but he trusted yet more in his idols. Thus the Seniorites did pass the time with eating and drinking.

But the prophet ceased not to prophesy of the wrath to come. And it came to pass on the fourth month of the fourth year that the sins were full—as the Seniorites had frequently been—and the prophet did say, “Surely I will destroy this people,” and on the night before the day of trial the Seniorites did try to cram up the law. But the fury of the prophet was kindled against them, and an examination which destroyeth at noonday was in their midst, and on the day of wrath there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth, for the Seniorites wist not what was written in the law, and many of them perished utterly. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the prophet, saying: “There cometh a voice of lamentation out of the University; Seniorites weeping for their diplomas and refusing to be comforted because they couldn’t graduate.”

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society was founded by three or four gentlemen connected with the University on September 24th, 1883. The plan of its foundation was a broad one, proposing to include among its members every scientific worker in the State, and aiming at the fostering and developing of original work in natural science.

The success of the Society along some of the lines of its work has been far beyond the expectations of its founders. It has finished seven years of prosperous existence. During these years over sixty meetings have been held and three hundred and fifty papers on various scientific subjects have been read. Many of these have been published in its

Journal, which appears now twice every year, with from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and sixty printed pages. In all, nine hundred and fifty-three pages have been issued, with a great many portraits, engravings and cuts. One-seventh of all the papers printed in the Journal have come from the students of the University. These papers are reports upon original researches and show well the stimulus the Society has given to such work.

Through donations, but chiefly by way of exchange for the Society's Journal, a valuable collection of scientific periodicals and books has been secured, numbering now nearly eight thousand books and pamphlets and increasing at the rate of more than one hundred monthly.

The exchange list now numbers more than three hundred and all parts of the civilized world are represented on it. Scientific societies and institutions in eighteen different nations correspond with the Society. They are distributed as follows: Canada, 10; Great Britain, 20; Germany, 37; Austria-Hungary, 10; Belgium, 3; Brazil, 1; Chile, 1; Mexico, 3, Netherlands, 6; Italy, 11; France, 9; Russia, 7; Switzerland, 12; Sweden, 4; Luxembourg, 1; Japan, 1; Portugal, 1; Argentine Republic, 1. The remaining exchanges are from the United States.

The North Carolina Historical Society.

This Society was founded about 1842, Hon. David L. Swain, LL. D., being its President. Many valuable collections were made of old files of newspapers, Legislative Acts, books, documents and letters of eminent men of the past. The Society was not incorporated, and so far as can be learned Governor Swain was the only officer. In fact, he seems to have been the entire Society. Among other treasures he became possessed of the books and historical papers which Judge A. D. Murphey gathered when he contemplated writing a history of the State. In July, 1868, when the Reconstruction Acts went into operation, he lost his place as President of the University and soon after died without making any disposition of the property of the Historical Society. His widow, who was the executrix of his will, found a memorandum stating that certain bound volumes were its property, and these she turned over to President Battle. Many rare autographs were sold to a Northern collector. She bequeathed by will the residue of the papers either to the State or to the University, as her executors, Hon. R. H. Battle and Judge Walter Clark, shall determine. No final decision has as yet been made, but it is confidently hoped that it will be in favor of the University.

The present Historical Society was chartered by act of the General Assembly ratified March 22d, 1875, the following being the corporators: William A. Graham, William Hooper, Thomas Atkinson, Charles Phillips, Fordyce M. Hubbard, Charles F. Deems, Braxton Craven, William H.

Battle, Matthias E. Manly, B. F. Moore, R. M. Pearson, E. G. Reade, Nereus Mendenhall, John H. Wheeler, Z. B. Vance, Calvin H. Wiley, George Davis, William Eaton, R. B. Creecy, Gen. D. H. Hill, S. D. Pool, W. C. Kerr, W. Shakspeare Harris, K. P. Battle, G. D. Bernheim, George V. Strong, Cyrus L. Hunter and Cornelia Phillips Spencer.

It will be noticed how many of these eminent men have died in the sixteen years since the passage of this act—Gov. Graham, Dr. Hooper, Bishop Atkinson, Dr. Phillips, Dr. Hubbard, Dr. Craven, Judge Battle, Judge Manly, Mr. Moore, Chief Justice Pearson, John H. Wheeler, Dr. Wiley, Mr. Eaton, Gen. Hill, Professor Kerr, Mr. Shakspeare Harris and C. L. Hunter. Mrs. Spencer is the only lady among the corporators. All will admit the eminent propriety of this recognition of her literary accomplishments.

Governor Graham called a meeting of the corporators on May 4th, 1875, in Raleigh. Rev. Dr. William Hooper was the first President. After his death Judge John Kerr was chosen at the Commencement of 1877. He was succeeded by President Battle. At the same time Rev. J. F. Heitman was chosen Secretary. He was succeeded by Dr. Stephen B. Weeks, and on his resignation Mr. William Johnston Andrews, the present efficient officer, was unanimously elected.

The Historical Society has done much service already in elucidating the history of our State. Many publications of great value were made prior to 1861 in the North Carolina University Magazine, the numbers of which are much sought after by those engaged in historical research. Similar papers may be found in recent issues of the same periodical. Good judges say that in consequence of the permanent value of such contributions this is the best college magazine in the United States.

President Battle tells us that after he lays aside executive duties, which have been very exacting, he proposes to devote considerable attention to the Historical Society, with the view of making it greatly more efficient in gathering historic material and rescuing from oblivion the facts throwing light on the development of our State. An earnest effort will be made to interest in the work not only our students, but the intelligent people of the State as well.

The Shakspeare Club.

This Society is intended to stimulate and guide those who study the dramatic authors of our own and other languages. It was organized in November, 1886, and has had a successful career from the first. Its scheme of reading and study for the next year is printed in each annual catalogue of the University and is observed in the monthly meetings of the Club. The Professor of English Literature, Dr. Thomas Hume, presides over the exercises and calls to his aid all the teachers and students who may be ready for this interesting department of research. The Society may be profitably used by the student of the antique drama, of the French classical and romantic school, of the earlier and later German forms, as well as by the Shakspeare specialist. All those lines of literature that are related to the drama, e. g., the old romances and novels, ballad poetry, etc., are made to run into the work of the Club. Opportunity is given for that most effective and inspiring of all training in composition and criticism which springs from following the bent of one's genius. Thus the theories and dry details of class-room may be happily supplemented by volunteer essays. During this last session the lovely romance of "Cymbeline" was compared with its sources in lively Boccacio and stiff Holinshed and the master's art of re-handling old material well illustrated. Interesting resemblances or contrasts of characters to those of "Othello" (Imogen and Desdemona, Iachimo and Iago, Posthumus and Othello) were marked out carefully. One paper finely discussed Shakspeare's conception of heredity. The general subject of the Cymbe-line evening found Dr. Hume in his element in an examination of "The Man Behind the Different Shakspeare Portraits." "Much Ado About Nothing" repaid us. We found the story in Ariosto and Spenser, and the same graceful situations we had seen in "Love's Labor Lost." We rollicked with Beatrice and Benedick, laughed at the Constables and studied the points of the stage villain. Then we had a grim pleasure in old Timon in Plutarch's and Lucian's and Shakspeare's accounts compared with Moliere's great Misanthrope and with rare Ben Jonson's type. Shakspeare's Philosophy of Fate and Free-will was handled as well as possible without "metaphysical aid." The next month brought us a view of Shakspeare's contemporaries. We glanced from the Elizabethan and Jacobean court to his fellow-playwrights. We studied, in Dr. Hume's characteristic paper, Miss Delia Bacon's "craze" on the joint authorship by the Raleigh-Sidney-Bacon-Shakspeare cycle, Judge Holmes's more valuable discussion of the single Baconian authorship and Donnelly's absurd cypher or cryptogram; and we'll not soon forget Professor Winston's humorous discussion of Dogberry and Donnelly as one and the same. Nor will the classic charm of that evening fade when Professor Alexander gave us a survey of Old, Middle and New Comedy among the Greeks, with happy versions of best passages interspersed, and showed how much of modern wit was already in Menander and Aristophanes. Our symposium on Shakspeare's Method of Treating Historical Subjects was not to be despised; how he had no politics of his own, but a loyal, national spirit; whether he was distinctively Protestant or only and everywhere English; why Magna Charta was left out of "King John"; how Scott's view of the miserable King differed from his; why and how so many plays were used to develop Prince Hal's character; the fire-eater, Hotspur, and the Welsh magician, Glendower;—didn't the bright students flash vividly through that hour and a quarter? Time would fail to tell what Victor Hugo in his preface to Ruy Blas was discovered to mean by his three classes of readers and spectators of the historical drama—the critics, the women and the crowd, and the elements of such a drama that appeal to them; and how all this was rounded off with readings in French comedy and in Congreve's and Sheridan's brilliant embezzlements of Moliere's and others' best repartees and situations.

The Club Library has been enriched and will be still more so by the generous offering of the admirable graduating class of '91—a beautiful set of Furnen's Variorum Editions of Shakspeare. The officers of the Club for this year are:

DR. THOMAS HUME .....	President.
PROF. G. T. WINSTON .....	Vice-President.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the University was organized in May, 1860, being among the first of the College Associations in the world. Little, however, can be said of its early history, for it was soon to perish in the troublous times of the war. It was revived September 17th, 1876, to fill out a longer and more useful life. Ever since its revival the work and influence of the Association have been steadily increasing, until now it occupies a prominent place in our University life. A large number of the students are members and take an active interest in all of its undertakings and in whatever pertains to its welfare.

Through the kindness of the ladies of the village, the Board of Trustees of the University, the Faculty and the students in general two rooms on the first floor of the South Building have been neatly furnished for the use of the Association.

Short and interesting services are held four nights in the week. These meetings are well attended by the students and have been found quite helpful. All lovers of music are cordially invited to take part in the singing. Aside from the regular meetings Bible classes of different kinds are organized every year to meet the demands of the students. The Missionary Volunteer Band is quite active, having raised a good sum each year to send one of the students to Japan as a teacher in the government schools and to do Christian work.

In addition to the spiritual the Association tries not to overlook the physical side of our student life. The gymnasium has lately been refitted by the Faculty and placed under the supervision of the Association. The Association accordingly employs a graduate of the Springfield, Mass., Training School as Director, and one who is well qualified to assist the students in this line. The exercise has been found light, agreeable and extremely beneficial. The field day exercises which come off in the spring term are a source of great amusement and recreation, several medals being given to the winners in the various contests. The Association endeavors to assist the new students in every way possible. There is a bureau of information at the Association parlors for the first few days of each term where any information in regard to entrance examinations, rooms, boarding-houses, etc., is gladly given. The Association also publishes each year a small Hand-book which contains much useful information to new students, and it will be to their interest to apply for one to the Bursar of the University before leaving home. At the beginning of each term a thorough canvass is made among the new students to give all who desire it the opportunity to join with us. All those who are members of evangelical churches are admitted into the Association as active members. Those not members of any church, but of good moral character, are admitted as associate members, having all of the privileges of the active members except those of voting and holding office.

The Association is by no means isolated in its work, but keeps in close touch with the great organization of which it is simply a part. By means of the District, State and International Conventions, Moody's Summer School and such gatherings the Association is enabled to keep apace with the improved methods of work, and thus to render more valuable service to the students of the University.

The Association Hand-book will supply any other information that may be desired along this line.

Over the Banister.

Over the banister leans a face
At half past two in the morning,
While her old man as mad as h——
Gets out of his bed a-yawning.

He creeps around and he strikes a light,
And he's got blood in his eye—
For the poor young man down there below
Tenderly saying good-bye.

He goes out-doors and looses the dog;
Beware, young man, beware;
You'd better go home and stop fooling with
Her beautiful golden hair.

A slight commotion and an ominous growl,
He's fled like a hind from the hallway;
But over the banister comes a dog
Which tears out the seat of his trousers.

Statistics.

A paper bearing thirty-nine printed questions was given to every student in the University, irrespective of class, fraternity, society or building, with the request that the blanks be filled out and the papers returned. About nine-tenths of these came back, and from the answers thus gotten the following statistics are made out:

Prof. Winston was considered by right big odds to be the most intellectual member of the Faculty; next to him in intellectuality stood Dr. Alexander, who was considered by much larger odds the most popular member, while Prof. Winston in turn stood second in popularity, crowded pretty close, however, for second place by Dr. Venable. By a big majority Dr. Hume is the hardest-working member, Dr. Venable coming next at a respectful distance. The efficient business manager of our base-ball nine for the last season, Mr. A. H. Patterson, of Salem, enjoys the reputation, the most enviable of all, of being the most intellectual student in all the assemblage of intellectual geniuses. He is considered, also, the most all-round popular man in the University. These two, coming both at once, would make anybody except "Ligious Pat" conceited. F. H. Batchelor and P. P. Winborne ran a close race for the hardest-working man in college; first Batchelor and then Winborne would be ahead, the latter finally beating by a majority of four. Knowing the modesty and retiring disposition of our editor-in-chief, and his aversion to seeing his name in print, the question, "Whom do you consider the most handsome man in college?" was left out. To the question, "What does the University most need?" the answer

“money” being ruled out, there were almost as many answers as there were papers, a majority, however, agreeing that since the resignation of our most excellent President, Dr. Battle, the most important thing now needed was some one to fill his place, and it was also agreed that Prof. Winston was that one. From the scores of other wants and needs we select the following: “Free Tuition,” “More Men,” “More Athletics,” “A first-class Gym.,” “Repairs,” “A new Board of Trustees,” “A Medical Building,” “An Infirmary,” “Electric Lights,” “Advertisement,” mainly by college athletics, “Bath-rooms,” “Nothing,” “Everything,” and “Co-education.”

But to proceed to more uninteresting details. The average student is 5 feet  $8\frac{3}{4}$  inches high, weighs 151 pounds  $3\frac{3}{4}$  ounces, wears a No. 6.8 shoe and 7.1 hat; he goes to bed at 11.30, gets up at 7.25, and studies every day a little over 5 hours, exclusive of the 17.5 hours a week which he spends in the recitation-room. One in every four has a mustache, one in every seven attends prayers, and ten in every nineteen attend church regularly; the rest go to church occasionally. Out of every 100, 60 play foot-ball, 33 play base-ball, and 50 play tennis. One out of every two take the Gym. Every man in the University except one approves of college athletics. Six out of every thirteen play cards, three out of every seven visit ladies in the village, five out of every nine dance, and one of every two owns a dress suit; one of every four performs on some musical (?) instrument, barring the larynx, two in every five belong to the Y. M. C. A., and three in every five to some one of the ten fraternities represented here. Five of every nine have fallen on something since they have been here, and of the remaining four at least three will fall before they get their sheep-skins.

Being from the South, and being white, we are politically almost a unit, with Zeb. Vance the favorite public man, Cleveland coming next. The majority of the boys who are anything are Methodists, the Presbyterians and Episcopalians coming next.

“Have you been true to the girl you left behind you?” To this question, out of 100, 49 SAY that they have, 38, with more regard for the truth, admit that they have not, and the remaining 13 refuse to answer. We infer that they have not, and presume that they were either ashamed to admit it or were afraid that the girl might find it out.

These statistics, as has been said, are based on answers turned in by about seven-eighths of the entire student body. They furnish, no doubt, a fair average of the personal characteristics and habits, and voice the general sentiments of the two hundred boys collected here, upon the various subjects set forth.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

OF THE

The Session of 1891-'92 will open the first Thursday in September, and last nine months. This School is designed to furnish the medical student with as complete instruction as possible in those subjects which constitute the foundation of medical science, but which too frequently do not receive the attention they merit, and to thus facilitate his subsequent labors by enabling him to study the higher branches of medicine with intelligence and success. Its connection with a well-equipped University makes it superior to a year's reading under any preceptor, while it is believed that it will compare favorably with the first year course of our best medical colleges. The course comprises instruction in Chemistry, Physics, Anatomy, Physiology and Hystology and Materia Medica. Every endeavor will be made to give students a practical knowledge of anatomy: dissecting is compulsory, and the use of the microscope will be taught.
